Procurement

We all need to protect the physical well-being of our employees.

Regardless of the industry, there is some safety wear or corporate dress code that has to be adhered to.

The procurement of the above stated can cost Hundreds of thousands of Rands even when the best price has been negotiated with suppliers.

Certain variations can lead to this cost growing exponentially.

- Like Issuing items to staff without taking into account qualifying criteria.
- Inferior quality products.
- Over-priced products.
- Staff misuse

The ability to accurately control the above dictates that the complete process has to be controlled from one central point.

Omniform partners with multiple suppliers getting quotes from each of them to ensure best price is made available as well as measuring the number of returns from clients to assess the quality of the products.

Receiving and distribution of stock items are handled digitally recording the quantities and receipt of acceptance from employees.

Staff sign for each item either digitally or manually to guarantee items are returned on end of employment or deducted from the employee if he/she fails to do so.
